- Edible Oil Market Update: Global edible oil prices strengthened in the evening session, with Malaysian palm oil and Chicago soyoil moving higher. Gains were supported by stronger crude oil and gasoil prices, recovery in soyoil, firm Dalian palm olein and signs of lower palm oil production in South Malaysia during early August.
- Palm Oil Update: According to South Peninsular Palm Oil Millers' Association (SPPOMA), South Malaysian palm oil production declined 9.73% during 1–10 August, compared with an 8.35% drop during 1–5 August. Meanwhile, Agri Malaysia and ITS estimated Malaysian palm oil exports during 1–10 August increased 9.21% and 2.62%, respectively, from the same period in July.
- US Soybean Export Update: AGP has opened a new export facility at the Port of Grays Harbor, Washington, expected to more than double the port's annual agricultural export capacity. The terminal will support shipments of US soybean meal and soybean oil to Southeast Asia and Asia-Pacific markets, strengthening export logistics amid expanding US soybean processing capacity.
- EU Soybean Import Update: EU-27 soybean imports reached around 0.657 million MT as of 2 August, down 50% YoY. The sharp slowdown in purchases by one of the world's major soybean importers is a bearish factor for global soybean prices, with future demand from crushers and the feed sector remaining key to the market outlook.
