Daily Pulses Report 07th October 2026

News Highlights

- IMD forecast heavy rainfall at isolated places over Nagaland, Manipur, Mizoram and Tripura, while thunderstorms with lightning and gusty winds are expected across several northern and southern states. Scattered rainfall is likely over East Madhya Pradesh through October 9 and Chhattisgarh through October 10.
- Today Market: Tur was mixed, with Solapur down ₹100/q and Chennai up ₹100/q. Chana gained ₹25–150/q across key markets, while Urad rose ₹25–75/q. Moong remained unchanged, Masoor was mostly steady with Katni down ₹50/q, and Matar was largely unchanged. Kabuli declined ₹200/q at Indore 42–44.
- Tamil Nadu Civil Supplies Corporation has invited a short e-tender cum reverse e-auction for the purchase of 60,000 MT of Tur Dal and Lentils for three months—November 2026, December 2026 and January 2027. The tender covers Tur Dal (Split Husked/Fatka), Canadian Yellow Lentil (Split Husked & Laired), and Canadian Yellow Lentil (Whole-Husked & Laired). The last date for online submission is 23 October 2026, up to 11:00 AM.
- Chana PSS Sell Tender – 7 Oct 2026: The highest bids increased across most states compared with 5 October. Maharashtra rose to ₹7,801/q (+₹184), Madhya Pradesh ₹7,401 (+₹170), Gujarat ₹7,523 (+₹72), and Uttar Pradesh ₹6,411 (+₹334), while Rajasthan remained unchanged at ₹7,500 and Haryana edged up ₹2 to ₹7,021/q.
- NAFED will start disposing of PSS-procured Masoor, Moong and Urad from 14 October 2026 through multiple e-auction platforms. Madhya Pradesh stocks include around 0.149 million MT Masoor, 0.350 million MT Moong and 0.041 million MT Urad, with additional stocks held in Uttar Pradesh, Gujarat and Odisha.
- Global palm oil production could decline by at least 2 million MT in 2027, with El Niño and other climate anomalies posing further downside risks. Malaysia's output may fall to 19.2–19.3 million MT, while slower Indonesian exports could tighten global supplies and support prices in 2027–28.
- Malaysian palm oil futures declined for the second consecutive session, with the benchmark December contract down 0.79% to 4,524 ringgit/MT amid concerns over rising inventories and weaker export demand. Higher production is expected to push September stocks to a record level, while weaker soyoil prices added pressure, although firm crude oil prices and a weaker ringgit limited the decline.
