Daily Pulses Report 15th October 2026

News Highlights

- IMD has forecast heavy to very heavy rainfall over Punjab, Haryana, Chandigarh and Delhi, with thunderstorms and hailstorms across several northern states. Heavy rain is also expected in parts of South India through October 21, while Karnataka and Andhra Pradesh may experience unsettled weather. Fresh snowfall in Jammu and Kashmir and Himachal Pradesh has lowered temperatures across the region.
- Today's market remained mostly steady, with Tur unchanged in Akola and Solapur while Chennai gained ₹50. Chana was largely stable, except for a ₹50 decline in Raipur. Urad fell ₹50 across Chennai, Delhi and Guntur, while Moong declined ₹50–100 across Delhi, Jaipur and Jabalpur. Masoor eased ₹50 in Katni but remained unchanged in Delhi and Kolkata. Matar and Kabuli prices were unchanged across the reported markets.
- Deficient monsoon rainfall, declining soil moisture and lower reservoir storage may reduce India's rabi sowing acreage, raising risks to wheat, pulses and oilseed production. Governments are encouraging farmers to select crops based on local water availability, particularly in water-scarce regions, amid rising wholesale food inflation.
- Chennai imported a total of 34,475 MT of pulses in containers from October 1–30, 2026, comprising 1,379 containers. Major imports included Brazil urad at 29,750 MT, Canada masoor at 1,600 MT, USA masoor at 625 MT, and Mozambique tur at 500 MT. Other imports included Myanmar urad and tur, Kenya tur, Tanzania tur and chana, Madagascar and Mozambique cow peas, and Ethiopian white pea beans.
- The government has ruled out immediate cuts in pulse import duties, relying on domestic kharif production, buffer stocks and global supplies to manage prices. India's retail pulse prices rose by up to 12.7% year-on-year as of October 14, led by tur, while kharif pulse acreage increased to 12.24 million hectares from 11.98 million hectares last year. Import duties remain at 10% on chana and masoor and 30% on yellow peas, while tur and urad imports are duty-free until March 31, 2027.
- NCCF held an initial meeting with Pulse Canada to explore cooperation and strengthen communication between the two organisations. Discussions focused on sharing information on pulse production, market conditions and emerging developments in India and Canada, with both sides expressing willingness to maintain regular dialogue and explore future collaboration.
